5. On 20 May approximately 2,000 Chinese Communist troops recently<sup>1</sup> recruited in the Ch'uchou (113-52, 28-57) area arrived in Linhai (121-07, 28-53) from Lishui (119-54, 28-28) via Loching in one hundred small junks.
6. Around 8 a.m. on 2 June four Chinese Communist motor junks were near Nationalist-held Peichishan (121-12, 27-39), apparently on a reconnaissance mission. They withdrew shortly after toward Wenchou.
7. On 2 June approximately 600 troops of the garrison brigade of the Chekiang 5 Military District arrived at Hsiaooh'iulung (小水壩)<sup>2</sup>, went ashore for a short time, and returned to their original base.<sup>3</sup>
8. In early June Chinese Communist motorboats assigned to troops at Huangtaao (121-06, 27-59) by the Chekiang 5 Military District Command were ordered to return to Wenchou immediately with an undetermined type of ammunition.<sup>4</sup>
9. In early June the 1 Battalion, 315 Regiment, 105 Division, was moving from an undetermined area on Huangtaao Island to Shayen (沙岩) in the southern part of the island. The 2 Battalion, 315 Regiment, was also moving its position.
10. On 5 June approximately 500 Chinese Communist troops of the South Chekiang Garrison Brigade in nine motor junks attacked and occupied Nationalist-held Peilungshan (120-59, 27-41) Island.
11. On 7 June elements of the 105 Division in five motor junks attacked Tungt'ou (洞頭) Island but were forced to withdraw by a Nationalist naval vessel. Afterwards the Chinese Communists attacked Sanp'an Island and engaged in battle with Nationalist guerrillas under the command of WANG (王). The Nationalist guerrillas were forced to evacuate to Nanchi Island (121- , 27- ), taking with them seven captured Chinese Communists.
12. In early June headquarters of the 64 Division, 22 Army, was at Hutou (虎頭) Village north of Foshanling (磨山嶺) on Taishan Island (122- , 30- ). Regiments of this division were on Taishan, Ch'angt'ushan (122-16, 30-16) and other nearby islands.
